It's always hard to start a letter when the speed of events moves at the pace at which it currently is!

To my mind, a few things still remain unchanged! For instance, the value of physical gold in any conservative portfolio, which I had been writing about for a long time! I emphasise physical gold because in a fragile, inter connected system, prone to bouts of sudden changes of expectations, having something in the real tangible world can be a huge advantage to its paper twin! Gold is a valuable insurance policy!

Value investing will not change because human nature does not change! Machine intelligence is trained on human intelligence, so the value of human rationality and virtues like patience cannot be understated! Patience is the ultimate alpha in a AI driven environment!

We make no claims to predict markets; we only think we can manage risk to a certain extent!
